Safety first

Most sexual behaviors are safe for expecting moms as long as your OB OKs them, but there are two activities all moms-to-be should absolutely avoid.

▶ If you're having oral sex, your partner should NEVER blow in your vagina. Blowing air can cause an air embolism (a blockage of a blood vessel by an air bubble), which can be potentially fatal for mother and child.

▶ You should NEVER have sex with someone whose sexual history is unknown to you or who you suspect may have a sexually transmitted disease while you're pregnant. You could contract the condition and pass it on to your unborn child, with potentially dangerous results.
